Resisting Genocide: The Multiple Forms of Rescue (Columbia/Hurst) From Columbia University Press

Based on three absorbing case studies—the Armenian genocide, the Holocaust, and the slaughter of the Tutsi in Rwanda—this volume marks the first international, comparative, and multidisciplinary attempt to situate rescue as a research object. The result is an exceptionally rich and disturbing volume that reveals an essential historical truth: while it might be impossible to isolate the factors that turn an individual into a rescuer, informal underground networks, however fragile, inevitably form the moment genocide appears. Compiled by three leaders in genocide studies, this collection features thirty contributors from eleven countries and maps the characteristics of an enduring phenomenon.

Editorial Review

Review

'A unique offering among the literature on genocides - of the highest quality - the scholarship is impeccable.'
- Gerard Prunier, author of The Rwanda Crisis: History of a Genocide 'Intellectually stimulating, engaging, and thought-provoking ... the study offers a fresh analytical perspective and a novel set of cross- disciplinary questions about rescue. It includes impressive, first-class scholarship.'
